Blue Straggler Cafe

FOR STARTERS

Being a 30-something, fairly directionless single female in South Texas is a world all its own. Kathy Lynn Harris's Blue Straggler is a laugh-out-loud, yet poignant, exploration of that experience — from the quirky, memorable characters who make up Bailey Miller's circle of family and friends to that feeling of your makeup sliding right off in the humidity.

Readers will easily identify with Bailey's sometimes humorous, often semi-tragic, choices that eventually lead her out of Texas, to a small mountain town in Colorado, and back. Along the way, she searches for not only herself but also answers to long-held secrets from her "legitimately unbalanced" great-grandmother's past.

JUST DESSERTS

"... both thoughtful and laugh-out-loud funny."

"... I laughed till I cried, then cried till I laughed. This is one I will read over and over again."

"... every single Texas reference Kathy Lynn Harris made was so descriptive that I knew exactly what she was talking about. I felt as if I was living the story."

"... The characters are so richly drawn, and the story humorous yet poignant. Harris is one of those rare writers who has real affection for the people she creates."

"... the best book I have read in a long time. I laughed, cried, and I couldn't put it down."

HAPPY HOUR

What would a Texas novel be without some good drinking scenes? Check out how Blue Straggler's protagonist, a feisty Texas girl, enjoys wine by the bucket and tequila by the shot, not always with the best results.

BLUE PLATE SPECIALS

Meet the other characters of Blue Straggler:

Rudy – Funny, quirky, would beat you badly on Jeopardy!

Idamarie – Take-no-crap Texas lady who makes the best buttermilk biscuits and gravy North of Laredo and South of Dallas. Drinks peppermint Schnapps while watching Dallas reruns.

Stella – Mayor of Colorado mountain town. Has prosthetic ear. Don't ask her about it.

Adam – Moody mountain man with many dogs and a beat-up Jeep (and heart)
