Women's Fiction / Humor

Synopsis

A blue straggler is a star that has an anomalous blue color and appears to be disconnected from those stars that surround it.

But this is not a story about astronomy.

Bailey Miller is "disconnected" from the cluster of her rural south Texas family. She has never quite fit in and now in her early 30s, she finds herself struggling with inner turmoil and a series of bad choices in her life.

Bailey's drinking too much (even for a member of her family), has a penchant to eat spoonfuls of Cool Whip, works in a job that bores her beyond description and can't keep a relationship longer than it takes for milk to expire in her fridge.

Join Bailey for this laugh-out-loud, poignant ride that eventually leads her out of Texas, to a small town in Colorado, and back again. She explores not only the secrets of her great-grandmother's past, but also uncovers some painful truths of her own. Bonus: She might even find love along the way.

PRAISE

“... both thoughtful and laugh-out-loud funny.”

“... I laughed till I cried, then cried till I laughed. This is one I will read over and over again.”

“... The characters made me laugh, cry, and wish that the story went on forever.”

“... every single Texas reference Kathy Lynn Harris made was so descriptive that I knew exactly what she was talking about. I felt as if I was living the story.”

“... The characters are so richly drawn, and the story humorous yet poignant. Harris is one of those rare writers who has real affection for the people she creates.”
